Fifth Regiment of Foot.

THIS Regiment was raised during the reign of Charles II, in 1674, for service in Holland, where for some years it followed the fortunes of the Prince of Orange. Later on, the Fifth was engaged in the defence of Gibraltar, during one of its sieges. So hot was the fire, that it is related that no less than 70 cannon and 80 mortars burst in the batteries.

The Regiment acquired great fame in the action at Groebenstein and in the Woods of Wilhelmsthal: the Grenadiers of France, the Royal Grenadiers, the Regiment of Aquitaine, and other corps—being the flower of the French Infantry—after one fire surrendered to the Fifth.*

Throughout the whole of our unfortunate contest with America, it was the lot of the Fifth Regiment to stand principally engaged. In no instance was it more conspicuous for gallantry than in the action of Charlestown—commonly called Bunker's Hill. During that unfortunate but well-fought day, Captain George Harris (afterwards the Conqueror of Mysore), was severely wounded in the head whilst he led on the Grenadiers. On that occasion, Lord Francis Rawdon, who was Lieutenant of the Company, kept up the spirit of intrepidity that had been displayed by his disabled Captain, and retired with the remnant of his brave followers after having received two shots through his cap.

The year 1767 was distinguished by the introduction into the Regiment of a system of Honorary Distinctions, which produced by its stimulus, such a body of Non-Commissioned Officers as few corps could boast of. The Honorary Distinctions consisted of three classes of medals: the first of gilt metal, was granted for simple "Merit;" the second of silver, was the reward of fourteen years of military merit; and the third of the same material, was engraved with the name of the wearer, and was the reward of twenty-one years good and faithful service as a soldier. Those who obtained the third medal had also an oval badge of the colour of the facings on the right breast, embroidered round with gold and silver wreaths, and inscribed in the centre with the word "Merit," in letters of gold. This notable order of merit was distributed every year on St. George's Day.

The combat of El Bodon, an incident of 1811, deserved and enjoyed the rare advantage of the special praise of Lord Wellington. He was generally very chary of the expression of admiration; he held to the doctrine that praise, if too lavishly administered, became a matter of indifference to its objects. His expressed approbation, therefore, was the more valuable for its rarity, and hence, when he said that the action of El Bodon offered a memorable example of what could be effected by steady discipline and confidence, he paid the troops engaged, the highest compliment they could receive. The facts of the case are simply these: The Fifth and 77th Regiments of the line were employed during the blockade of Ciudad Rodrigo, prior to the siege in 1812, on the heights near the village of El Bodon; they were associated with the 11th Light Dragoons, a Portuguese Regiment of Cacadores, and some Portuguese Artillery. This small force was suddenly attacked by a cloud of French Cavalry and fourteen battalions of Infantry with six guns; the Portuguese guns were captured in the fray, the Fifth foot gallantly recovered them, and when the Fifth and 77th were assailed by the Cavalry—they charged and overthrew the horsemen! Could any Infantry in the world have accomplished more? *

The assault of Badajoz took place at 10 p.m. on the 6th April, 1812, and perhaps the annals of war scarcely furnish a more striking example of daring attack and earnest resistance. The following extract from the stirring narrative of Napier is worth recording: "Still swarming round the remaining ladders, these undaunted veterans strove who should first climb, until all being overturned, the French shouted victory, and the British baffled but untamed, fell back a few paces and took shelter under the rugged edge of the hill. Here, when the broken ranks were somewhat reformed, the heroic Colonel Ridge springing forward, called with a stentorian voice on his men to follow, and seizing a ladder, once more raised it against the Castle; yet to the right of the former attack where the wall was lower and an embrasure offered some facility, a second ladder was soon placed by the Grenadier officer, Canch, and the next instant he and Ridge were on the ramparts, the shouting troops pressed after them, the garrison amazed and in a manner surprised, were driven fighting through the double gate into the town, and the castle was won. A reinforcement sent from the French reserve then came up, a sharp action followed, both sides fired through the gate and the enemy retired; but Ridge fell, and no man died that night with more glory—yet many died and there was much glory."

The Regiment contributed to the restoration of the Empire in India during the Mutiny, as the following incidents will shew, viz.:

In August, 1857, two Companies under the command of Captain F. W. L'Estrange, with three guns under Major V. Eyre of the Bengal Artillery, defeated a large force of the rebels, and effected the relief of Arrah.* In September, the Head-Quarters of the Regiment marched from Allahabad under Major E. Simmons, joined Major-General Havelock's force, and was present in the engagements of Pundoo Nuddee, Mungulwar, and Alum Bagh. It also was present at the storming of Lucknow and the first relief of the Residency's Garrison, and was afterwards engaged in the defence of the new position taken up outside the Residency.

On the approach of Sir Colin Campbell with his relieving force, the Fifth took a prominent part in the storm and capture of the enemy's post at the King's Stable, Engine House, &c. After which it became part of Sir James Outram's force at the Alum Bagh, and was constantly employed in repelling harassing attacks of the rebels, and in many successful sorties until March, 1858, when it was engaged in the final assault and capture of Lucknow under Sir Colin Campbell (afterwards Lord Clyde).

Three Victoria Crosses were won by the Fifth. The recipients were Private Peter McManus, Serjeant Robert Grant (alias Ewart), and Private Patrick McHale.*

It cannot be thought superfluous to make an observation relative to the apparent contradiction which is manifested between the actual situation in the line of the Fifth Regiment with regard to the Sixth, the latter from the date of its establishment, appearing to be an older regiment. The same singular circumstance attends the Fourth, or "King's Own," which, in point of original formation, is junior to the Fifth. These seeming contradictions are accounted for in the following manner: When the regiments in question were first raised, they were not placed upon the British establishment, but sent by Charles II. for the service of the States General. On the abdication of King James II., and the subsequent election of William, Prince of Orange, the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth were numbered and taken into the line according to the periods at which they landed from Holland. Thus, for instance, the Fourth, which had originally been raised after the Fifth, arrived in England before that corps, and took precedence. The Sixth, which had been levied before the Fifth, returned to its native country at a later period than either, and was consequently placed according to that date. †

FIFTH FUSILIERS.

A P P E N D I X.

From CAPTAIN L'ESTRANGE to the Assistant Adjutant General, Dinapore.

CAMP BEFORE ARRAH,

2nd August, 1857.

SIR,

I have the honor to report that on the arrival of the Detachment 5th Fusiliers (160 men) under my command at Buxar on the 30th ultimo, I found that our services were required to co-operate with Major Eyre, Bengal Artillery, to march on Arrah, where we understood some 2000 or 3000 of the mutineers had assembled. On the following evening the force, consisting of 3 guns, 154 men, with Captain Scott, Ensigns Lewis, Oldfield, and Mason, all of the 5th Fusiliers, under my command, and 12 mounted volunteers of the Railway and Engineer Department. The whole, under the command of Major Eyre, left Buxar en route for Arrah. We came on the enemy on the morning of the 2nd instant: we found that they had assembled in immense force, and the woods for miles around seemed to be swarming with rebel Sepoys. Major Eyre immediately fired some rounds of shell among the enemy who were in our front, and I sent a skirmishing party under the command of Captain Scott, to drive the rebels out of the woods. In consequence of an extensive swamp on the left of the road our skirmishers were delayed for a short time, but at length reached the woods under a very heavy fire from the mutineers. Our skirmishers soon cleared the woods on the right and left of the road, during which time the right skirmishing party sustained a severe cross fire, and three men of the 5th were wounded; our whole force then gained the open country, but with the loss of a considerable quantity of baggage. The enemy had surrounded us on all sides, and our main body being within the enemy's rifle range the drivers left the elephants and baggage carts and made off into the woods. A mile further on we found that the Beebeegunge bridge had been completely destroyed by the rebels, who had there concentrated their forces, and were determined to dispute our further advance. Finding that the reconstruction of the bridge in face of such a large force of the enemy was impossible, and that the river could not be forded, we made a flank movement so as to gain the railway embankment on our right, and thus proceeded direct to Arrah.

The enemy immediately left their position behind Beebeegunge bridge, and proceeded in a parallel direction with us: they kept up their fire on us, but the ground being favorable for our skirmishers, who were judiciously led by Captain Scott, no great difficulty was experienced by our force until we arrived to within 300 yards of the railway embankment, the ground here being very much broken, and as we were unable to get the guns on to the railway line, the rebels clearly saw the difficulties we had to encounter, and made certain of our complete destruction. Notwithstanding Major Eyre having opened on the enemy with shell and round shot, and although our skirmishers made excellent practice with their Enfield rifles, still no impression could be made on the rebels, who advanced in large numbers, and came rushing on to the mouths of the guns. In the wood on our left an immense body of the rebels had assembled, and poured a tremendous fire upon our line, the left of which with two guns occupied a slope, and the right was close up to the railway bank under shelter of some brick kilns and other sort of cover; our line was then about 300 yards in length, and the enemy came pouring down on us in large numbers. At this time we were in imminent danger, when Major Eyre ordered us to charge the enemy.

This movement was perfectly successful, and our line advancing at the charge the mutineers fled from the woods, from whence emerging Major Eyre opened on them with grape, and the enemy cleared off in all directions. One officer and eight men were wounded during the operations of the day, which commenced at about 6 A.M., and lasted until about 3 P.M.

I beg to bring to your special notice the gallant conduct of Captain Scott, Ensigns Lewis and Mason, who prevented the enemy from turning our right, and maintained their position under a tremendous fire. Ensign Oldfield, who was wounded in the face by a rifle ball, was nevertheless most efficient at his post, namely, with two guns on the left. Lieutenant Wild (of the late 40th Bengal Regiment), our Interpreter, rendered us great assistance, skirmishing with our men when they were thus employed, charging with our line, and performing all his other duties with extreme intelligence.

I flatter myself that with respect to the conduct of the non-com-Officers and Privates of the 5th Fusiliers, no comments or recommendations to praise can be required at my hands.

I wish to avail myself of this opportunity of acknowledging the many services which the gentlemen volunteers of our force have rendered to the men of the 5th Fusiliers.

I have, &c., &c.,

(Signed) F. W. L'ESTRANGE, Captain,
5th Fusiliers.

WAR OFFICE,

11th June, 1858.

[VICTORIA CROSS.]

The Queen has been graciously pleased to confirm the grant of the decoration of the "Victoria Cross" to the under-mentioned officers, non-com. officers, and men of Her Majesty's and of the East India Company's Services, which decoration has been provisionally conferred upon them by Major-general Sir James Outram, G.C.B., and by the late Major-general Sir Henry Havelock, K.C.B., on account of acts of bravery performed by them in India, as recorded against their several names in virtue of the power delegated to generals commanding Corps, Divisions, or Brigades, by Her Majesty's warrant of the 29th January, 1856.

5TH FOOT.

Private Peter M'Manus.—Date of act of bravery, 16th September, 1857. "A party on the 26th September, 1857, was shut up and besieged in a house in the City of Lucknow by the rebel Sepoys. Private M'Manus kept outside the house until he was himself wounded, and, under cover of a pillar, kept firing on the Sepoys and preventing them rushing on the house. He also, on conjunction with private John Ryan, 1st Madras Fusiliers, rushed into the street and took Captain Arnold, of the 1st Madras Fusiliers, out of a dooly and brought him into the house, in spite of a heavy fire in which Captain Arnold was again wounded." [Extract from Major-General Sir James Outram's, G.C.B., Divisional Orders, dated 1857.]

WAR OFFICE,

19th June, 1860.

The Queen has been graciously pleased to signify her intention to confer the decoration of the "Victoria Cross" on the undermentioned soldiers of Her Majesty's Army, whose claims to the same have been submitted for Her Majesty's approval, on account of acts of bravery performed by them in India, as recorded against their several names, viz. :—

1ST BATTALION 5TH REGIMENT.

Sergeant Robert Grant.—Date of act of bravery, 24th Sept. 1857. "For conspicuous devotion at Alum Bagh on the 24th September, 1857, in proceeding under a heavy and galling fire, to save the life of private Deveney, whose leg had been shot away, and eventually carrying him safe into camp, with the assistance of the late Lieutenant Brown and some comrades."

1ST BATTALION 5TH REGIMENT.

Private Patrick M'Hale.—Date of acts of bravery, 2nd October and 22nd December, 1857. "For conspicuous bravery at Lucknow on the 2nd October, 1857, when he was the first man at the capture of one of the guns at the Cawnpore Battery, and again on the 22nd December, 1857 ; when by a bold rush he was the first to take possession of one of the enemy's guns, which had sent several rounds of grape through his Company, which was skirmishing up to it. On every occasion of attack Private McHale has been the first to meet the foe, amongst whom he caused such consternation by the boldness of his rush as to leave little work for those who followed to his support. By his habitual coolness and daring and sustained bravery in action, his name has become a household word for gallantry among his comrades."

LUCKNOW,

29th March, 1858.

My dear Brigadier,

I am now preparing for a start to Calcutta, but before I go, I must beg you to accept my sincere and hearty adieu. I shall ever look back with pleasure to the period we had been associated together, and with pride to my connection with your glorious regiment. As my farewell order to the division will be of too general a nature to admit of the expression of my opinion of each regiment individually, I take this mode of begging to assure you, that I am deeply sensible of the obligations under which the 5th Fusiliers has laid me, and that I shall ever bear it, and its gallant commander in grateful recollection. May I beg that you will, when you have opportunity, give my kindest regards and best wishes to every one of your officers. It is my earnest hope that all happiness and prosperity may attend them and you.

Believe me, my dear Brigadier,

Your and their most sincere friend,

(Signed), J. OUTRAM.

To BRIGADIER GUY,

5th Fusiliers.

General Orders by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief.

HEAD-QUARTERS, CALCUTTA,

9th March, 1861.

1. The Commander-in-Chief had much pleasure in bringing to the notice of His Excellency the Viceroy that the services of H.M. 1st Battalion 5th Fusiliers, now about to return to England, merited the same distinction which had been conferred on other regiments when leaving India for the very useful and distinguished part which they had taken in the field.

2. Sir Hugh Rose is happy to record how nobly 150 men of the 5th Fusiliers maintained the ancient fame of their regiment, when with their gallant comrades of the 1st Company, 5th Battalion, Bengal Artillery, and the Buxar Gentlemen Volunteers, the whole under Colonel Eyre, C.B., Bengal Artillery, attacked an overpowering enemy, under every sort of difficulty, totally defeated them, and relieved the small but very gallant garrison of Arrah—a feat of arms as important in its results as it was creditable to the daring ability of Colonel Eyre.

8. No greater tribute of praise can be given to the 5th Fusiliers than to say that they afterwards formed part of the Heroic Force in Oude under two Generals—Sir James Outram and Sir Henry Havelock—of whose brilliant services the Army will retain recollection which no time will efface.

4. The Commander-in-Chief requests Colonel Guy, C.B., to accept for himself and distinguished regiment His Excellency's wishes for their welfare and safe return to England.

By Command.

(Signed) W. MAYHEW, Lieut.-Col.,
ADJUTANT-GENERAL.

On the 13th July, 1864, the 1st battalion received new colours in the Horse Guards Parade which were presented by His Royal Highness The Field Marshal Commanding in Chief, and on that occasion he addressed the regiment as follows :—

“ Officers and Soldiers of the Fifth Fusiliers :—

“ I feel great pleasure in having this opportunity given me, of presenting the new colours just consecrated by my Reverend friend, The Chaplain General, to your glorious regiment. I use the word glorious advisedly, for, in looking over its records, I find few regiments can boast of more service or of bearing a higher character for gallantry. The regiment bears date as 5th Regiment of the British line from 1685, but was actually raised, and actively employed several years earlier, nearly 200 years ago. I will not now detain you by entering into its history, but will only call attention to a few of its most striking exploits. At Wilhelmsthal in 1762, I read that the Fifth Foot behaved nobly, and made about twice its own number prisoners, and as a mark of distinction, the men were permitted to exchange their hats for the caps of the French Grenadiers, their prisoners, and in commemoration of their gallantry on the occasion, His Majesty King William the Fourth, was graciously pleased in 1836, to equip them as Fusiliers, and authorised the name Wilhelmsthal on the colours.

“ At the taking of Saint Lucie in 1778, the Fifth by its gallant conduct, acquired the privilege of wearing a distinguishing plume, having taken again from the French Grenadiers sufficient white plumes to equip every man in the regiment.

“ In the Peninsular war, I find the regiment attached to the celebrated Third, or Picton's fighting division, and there bearing the name of the Fighting Fifth. One exploit in 1811, at El Bodon,

“ when the Fifth charged in line, and with the bayonet broke a “ regiment of French dragoons, will well illustrate its high state of “ discipline at that time, and it is thus spoken of in the Duke of “ Wellington's dispatches.

“ The conduct of the Fifth regiment, commanded by Major Ridge,
 “ in particular affords a memorable example of what steadiness and “ discipline of the troops and their confidence in their officers, can “ effect in the most difficult and trying situations.

“ At a later date, how much disappointment was felt throughout
 “ the regiment, at not being able to take part in the glories of the “ Crimea, has been brought to my notice. And I was very glad
 “ when you had a chance of again upholding your old name for “ gallantry, which you did so nobly, in the late Indian Mutiny,
 “ when on no single occasion did you miss an opportunity of adding
 “ to your justly acquired fame, and no regiment bears more honor-
 “ ably on its colors the name of Lucknow, which I see is now added
 “ to the list of noble deeds thereon, and I beg to add my congratula-
 “ tions on this addition to former honors.

“ I have great pleasure in addressing a regiment in which “ meritorious conduct has been so long held to deserve reward, for I “ believe that it was from the establishment of the order of merit in
 “ the Fifth, instituted in 1767, and sanctioned by royal authority 1832,
 “ that the royal warrant affording reward for meritorious conduct
 “ took its rise. My present knowledge of you, has, I regret to say,
 “ been but very recent. From my experience, I can only speak in your “ praise, both as to good conduct in quarters, and to fine appearance
 “ and steadiness on parade, and I have no hesitation in saying now
 “ to you, Colonel, Master, and to all the officers, non-commissioned “ officers, and men of the Fifth Fusiliers, that I am very much pleased

“ with all I see of the regiment. I feel a pride and a satisfaction in “ presenting to such a regiment its new colors, knowing how nobly
“ you will bear them, if summoned to the field in defence of, or for
“ the honor of the British Empire.

“ Fifth Fusiliers, you will bear my good wishes wherever you
“ may be required in the service of your country.”
